Speaker 1: The very interesting divide that I'm hearing from folks in Washington is that while Harris again, will take a more expansive approach to tech companies that are in a position to exercise market power or monopolize a sector, whether it is, you know, apps, whether it's software, whether it's hardware, whether it's platform all potentially in the crosshairs. Trump is expected to be focusing on those tech companies that may be seen to be adverse to his own interests. So really what we're talking about there is the content gatekeepers.